

You've Registered to Vote... Now What?

As Americans, one of our most precious freedoms is the constitutional right to select our leaders. After registering to vote, be sure you have all the information you need to cast your ballot on Election Day.

Within two to four weeks after registering to vote, you should receive a voter registration card which will list the polling place where you will vote, as well as your districts.

If you do not receive your voter registration card, you should:

1. Check the status of your registration by visiting the Secretary of State's voter information website at www.sos.ga.gov/elections to access the poll locator or call 1-888-265-1115.
2. If you cannot access this information, call your local voter registration office (a telephone directory can be found online at www.sos.ga.gov/elections) to confirm that your registration form was received.

You do not have to re-register for each election, but if you have not voted in three years, it is important to confirm your registration with your county voter registration office prior to Election Day.

Any person who submits a voter registration form by mail and is registering for the first time in Georgia must provide appropriate identification. *This requirement does not apply if you registered in person. If you did not provide this information, please submit a copy of your identification to your county voter registration office on or prior to Election Day
